Description

FH Joanneum is a University of Applied Sciences that was established in 1995. It is one of the largest Universities of Applied Science in Austria: it has about 4,600 students.

The programmes are practice-oriented, project-based and interdisciplinary.

The language spoken is mostly German (B2 level of German is required) but most study programmes can offer enough courses in English to fulfil the semester workload for an exchange semester.

Strengths

- Graz offers a free pick-up-service by buddies that are more than happy to provide help to the international students on Austrian student life.
- Wide range of German courses are offered during the semester and prior to semester start.
