Hochschule Magdeburg - Campus Stendal

Description

Founded in 1991, the university's name has long been a trademark for a solid academic education, practice-oriented research and a committed student body.

The practical course and excellent facilities continue to attract students. Not only do they enrich the cities of Magdeburg and Stendal during their studies, but most remain in the region after graduation and provide innovations that benefit businesses and society.

In Stendal, student culture, events and sport play a very important role.

Strengths

- A modern and welcoming campus is now located in a former barracks, including a green classroom.
- The University focuses on practice-oriented studies that connect in-classroom learning with practical experience instead of overly theoretical lectures such as in secondary school.
