

Universidade Lusófona de Humanidade e Tecnologias

 Lisbon, Portugal

Universidade Lusófona Lisboa

Description

Situated in the city of Lisbon , near a big garden, the DELLI course focuses its didactic proposal on: experimental project and practices, autonomous critical thinking and the close connection with artistic practice. The structure and pedagogical approach of the course are based on the concept of a permanent laboratory.

Imperfection and diversity are considered aspects capable of providing students with critical, creative thinking and design autonomy. In each academic year national and international professionals are invited to share their knowledge with students. Experimentation contribute positively to new intervention strategies that help to redesign the contemporary economy and society.

Strengths

- The experimental hand-on approach makes this school different.
- The personalised and autonomous approach helps students develop critical thinking skills.
